ORANGEBURG, S. C., JAN. 17, 1879.

Mr. James L. Sims is authorized to receive and receipt for all moneys due the Edisto Clarion for advertising and subscription, and he will fill out all subscriptions to the Clarion for which we have received pay.

T. C. ANDREWS & SON.

The little daughter of Mr. Robert McKewen, while playing about the fire, fell in and was painfully burned about the hands. We trust the little one will soon get better.

Mr. John B. Peck has been appointed general superintendent of the South Carolina Rail Road in place of Mr. Solomons, who resigned. Mr. Peck is said to be an experienced railroad man.

We learn that Mr. James Johnson, a jurymen in attendance on the court now in session, was taken ill on Monday last, and was obliged to leave his post and return home. Mr. Johnson has our sympathies and wishes that he may soon be restored to health.

The season of mad dogs seems not yet to be ended even though it is winter. On Sunday a dog was killed in the yard of Mr. Boliver said to have been mad. We will never get rid of this fearful evil until every dog bitten is killed, and the quicker it is done the better.

J. K. B., the efficient correspondent of the News and Courier, in noticing the court proceedings, says: "It is due to Acting Solicitor DeTreville to say that he conducted the prosecutions for the State with marked zeal and ability, and, as the list of convictions shows, was remarkably successful."

His Honor, Judge Hudson, is winning his way into the affections of our people by his able discharge of duty as the presiding officer of our court. Business is being rapidly dispatched, and the heavy docket cleared by his earnest efforts. As a disciplinarian for a court house our Judge has no superior.

Our thanks are due Mr. S. A. Reeves, Druggist, for samples of his fine segars and other courtesies. We confidently recommend this young merchant and his goods to the public as being well worth the prices charged. Indeed his segars at $2 per hundred are worth twice the money, and if you buy them once you will buy and smoke no other. Drugs and toilet goods a specialty. Give him a call.

CONSIDERABLE interest was manifested in the case of the State vs. Tyler, for the murder of Davis, and the verdict of "not guilty" rendered by the jury meets with general approval. Col. W. J. DeTreville, for the State, adroitly and ably prosecuted the case, notwithstanding the little evidence he had upon which to base an argument. Gen. James F. Izlar and Col. Laurence Izlar made eloquent speeches for the defence, maintaining fully their standard and reputation as criminal lawyers.

QUICK sales, low prices, additional facilities and small profits are established features at the Auction and Commission House of Mr. C. D. Kortjohn. Hard times seem to be revolutionizing things, but Kortjohn is revolutionizing hard times. The harder money is to get, the lower his prices. Indeed he creates trade—makes business and drives it to success. His enterprise cannot, will not know abatement. His quarters have been enlarged, his stock increased and his agencies multiplied in proportion to his increased business. Go, see and buy.

The members of the Edisto Rifles expect to have a Fair early in March to raise money to uniform the company, and we hope they will meet with success in their enterprise. A meeting of the company will be held on next Tuesday evening, 21st instant, at half-past seven o'clock to arrange for the entertainment, and every member is requested to be present.

ADVERTISING does pay, provided it is done in the right paper. To prove the above proposition, we will cite a case in point. Sometime ago a buggy man came to town with twenty buggies for sale, and like a sensible man he sent up an advertisement to THE DEMOCRAT office. Now—hold your breath while we tell you the balance—before we could get the advertisement in type the man had sold the last one of his buggies. Who says advertising don't pay.

EVERY man desires to save all the money he can and all the trouble possible, and for this purpose will patronize the house that keeps every thing he needs at the lowest prices. No where else can these objects be accomplished better than at the store of Messrs. D. E. Smoak & Co. Clothing, Dry Goods, Boots, Shoes, Hats, Groceries, Tobaccos, &c., all of the best quality, are kept and sold as low as at any other house. Call upon them and save both money and trouble.

MESSRS. USEY & MURRAY, who opened in our town in the early part of last fall with so much promise, have removed their entire stock of goods to George's Station, where they will continue to do business as heretofore. We cannot but express regret for this removal after so short a stay and so auspicious an opening. Mr. Wm. Murray, who was in charge of the business here is a young man of large business capacity, courteous manner and polite address, and leaves in Orangeburg many warm friends who wish him all the success human hopes may desire.

We have been requested by Mr. J. A. Dantzler, who has taken some pains to ascertain the facts, that the rumor which reports Addison Pauling as voting the Radical ticket at the last election is false. Addison voted at the Poplar Precinct when several Democratic gentlemen stood at the box and saw him put the ballot in, among whom was Mr. Shed Parler and Mr. Sam Kemorlin. The report is being circulated to the serious injury of an old Democratic colored citizen, who has always been faithful to the party in the past, even from the beginning. We take pleasure in giving publicity to the correction with the hope that public judgment will be suspended and the former character of Addison will be re-established among his neighbors.

THE Lee Monument Association, chartered by the Legislature of Virginia for the purpose of erecting in Richmond a monument to General R. E. Lee proposes to take up on his birthday—the 19th of January—a collection throughout the South in aid of its undertaking. It is suggested also that entertainments be given throughout the South on the night of the 20th for the same object. The association has a large sum on hand but not enough to erect a fitting monument. Can't the ladies of Orangeburg contribute something to this worthy cause by holding an entertainment of some kind on that night. Lee was the common property of the South, and every Southerner should esteem it a privilege to contribute towards erecting this monument to his memory.

DEATH OF A STRANGER.—Mr. Geo. Webster, a native of Hudson, N. Y., and who was on a visit to our town for the benefit of his health, died at the Meroney House, on Saturday evening, the 11th instant, of pulmonary consumption. He had only been in our midst about a week. We learned from a friend who was with him that he was in the 39th year of his age, and leaves a wife and two little girls to mourn the death of husband and father. It will be a satisfaction to them to know that, although he died in a strange land, among strangers, with no loving hand of wife or relative near to administer to his wants or soothe his dying pillow, yet he was tenderly cared for by Mr. Meroney, the proprietor of the hotel where he died, and his kind-hearted lady. Mr. C. B. Glover was also very kind in his attentions, as well as some other gentlemen. In their bereavement his friends and relatives have our warmest sympathy, and may the God of the widow and orphan temper this sad affliction to the good of his wife and little ones and heal their broken hearts. The remains were taken to the home of the deceased for interment.

We would call the attention of the reading and buying public to the change made by Messrs. Sorentrue & Loryea, from their old stand to the commodious brick store lately occupied by Messrs. Usey & Murray. This enterprising firm, comparative strangers in Orangeburg, have made such rapid strides toward success that a change to more commodious quarters became an imperative necessity. Low prices, fair dealing, kind attentions and standard goods have done the work. Messrs. Sorentrue & Loryea will increase their stock in every line, add new features and thus increase their capacity to meet the wants of our citizens. Remember the change and give them a call.

ALMOST every town, says an exchange, has a certain number of men who impress one with the idea that they would like to build a high fence around the place, leaving but one gate. Then they would like to stand at the gate with a club and knock down any and every stranger who might seek admittance, especially if the stranger proposed to benefit the town in any way. We are glad to say we are not among that number. If any man or set of men can come here and publish a better paper than we can for the same money we say let them come, and we will retire, as every good citizen should be willing to do all he can to advance the general prosperity of the community in which he may live.

THERE is not a more attractive store in Orangeburg than that kept by Mr. Henry Kohn. No department is without its features to attract, to please and to make a customer feel at home, and the best of all is a stock of goods second to none, and at as low prices as can be had anywhere. His dry goods are well assorted, affording variety sufficient to please the most fastidious taste; his hosiery embraces every variety, every quality and at every price; his woollens, both for gentlemen and ladies, are of the best quality; his shirts are good—said to be the best in the State; and his boots and shoes, every size and quality running from the biggest foundation to the tiniest foot, cannot fail to please and are really bargains.

QUITE an interesting protracted meeting is now in progress at the Methodist Church in this place under the direction of Rev. Manning Brown, Presiding Elder of Orangeburg District, assisted by the Rev. O. A. Darby, Pastor of the Congregation, and the Rev. J. L. Sifry of the Cokesbury Circuit. We have never seen more sincere efforts put forth or heard more earnest preaching in behalf of erring men than these faithful ministers of the gospel are doing. Our people need just such work and we trust the meeting will be blessed with abundant success in the salvation of souls and the building up of Christ's spiritual kingdom in our midst. Let Christians become co-laborers in the work, and we shall have a revival of religion that will result in great advantage to the entire community.

COURT.—The business of the Court of Common Pleas has progressed rapidly under Judge Hudson. The Grand Jury was finally discharged on Saturday after submitting their presentment, short but to the point. The public offices were reported as being in the hands of competent men and well kept, and the Poor House was found to contain only three inmates. This last speaks well for the industry of our citizens even in these hard times.

The following cases were disposed of since our last issue:
State vs. Richard Forrest, bastardy. Not guilty.
State vs. Hilliard Rumph and Romeo Knotts, disturbing a religious meeting. Guilty.
State vs. Lydia McMichael, hog stealing. Not guilty.
State vs. Frank Faust and Jim Harrison, hog stealing. Guilty.
State vs. Antrum McGrew and Caleb McKelvey, steer stealing. Guilty.
State vs. Frank Matthews, bastardy. Not guilty.
State vs. C. W. Syphret, bastardy. Not guilty.
State vs. Anderson Tyler, murder. Not guilty.
State vs. Benj. F. McClellan, assault and battery with a concealed weapon. Not guilty.
The cases against S. L. Duncan, Sandy Keitt, J. H. Livingston and E. A. Webster, have been continued to the next term.
The following sentences were passed upon those convicted:
Lewis Heins, colored, convicted of burglary at common law. Imprisonment for life in the Penitentiary.
Ned Robinson and Thos Dantzler, statutory burglary. Three years each in the Penitentiary.

Casus Cordes and Wm. Huggins, colored, grand larceny. Three years each in the Penitentiary.

Jim Harrison and Frank Faust, colored, hog stealing. One year each in Penitentiary.

Jacob Bowen and Wick Bowen, white, riot. Forty dollars fine or two months in jail.

Frank Matthews, colored, convicted of bastardy. Required to give bond conditioned for the payment of $25 a year for twelve years for the support of the child.

Wm. A. Argo, colored, obtaining goods by means of a token. Three months in the Penitentiary.

Hilliard Rumph and R. Knotts, disturbing a religious meeting. One month in the county jail and $20 fine.

In the case of Antrum McGrew and Caleb McKelvey, cow stealing and receiving stolen goods, McKelvey was granted a new trial, and McGrew was sentenced to one year's imprisonment and pay a fine of $1.

This closed the work of the general sessions court, and the court of common pleas is now in session.

An Exciting Murder Trial.

We clip from the News and Courier the following report of the case of the State vs. J. Anderson Tyler, indicted for the murder of John W. Davis, his father-in-law, on the 7th of September last, which was tried last Tuesday. From the testimony given by the State's witnesses, it appeared that the tragedy had taken place at a point on the Ninety-Six Road in Liberty Township, in Orangeburg county, known as the "Double Branches," about midday on the 7th of November last. The deceased and young Tyler had left their homes on the 6th of September in company, and had gone to Orangeburg to sell a load of cotton. On the day following the deceased and Tyler left Orangeburg on their way back home. About midday they halted at the "Double Branches," to feed and water their horses and refresh themselves. Tyler finished eating first, and Davis, who sat beside him, had a piece of bread in one hand and his knife in the other. A conversation on general subjects had been carried on in a friendly manner for some time, when Davis said to Tyler: "When I get home I intend that your wife shall sign this paper," referring to a title to a piece of land to which Tyler's wife was heir, and which Davis claimed to hold a lien upon. Tyler replied that his wife had told him that she did not intend to sign the paper. Davis then grew very angry, and said: "Well, —her, I will sue her for it." Tyler replied that he was willing to pay for the land rather than have any trouble, but Davis said no, he would not agree to any such proposition, and he believed that he (Tyler) was the whole cause of his wife's stubbornness, and he intended to kill him. So saying Davis sprang to his feet, knife in hand, and made a lunge at Tyler, who as soon as he could gain his feet struck his assailant a blow with his fist between the eyes which staggered him sufficiently to allow him to step back a few paces and draw his knife. Davis quickly followed him with knife raised and made several passes at him, cutting his clothes in several places and wounding him slightly in the side. Tyler then began to return blow for blow and stab for stab. He first thrust his knife to the hilt between the ribs of Davis in two places, and then with a side slash he severed the carotid artery of his adversary. Upon receiving this wound Davis dropped his hands and walked about twenty paces and then fell dead. When the body of the deceased was found his right hand held an open knife firmly clutched and in his left hand he held a memorandum book, the title deed, concerning which the difficulty arose, and his spectacle case. Tyler it was shown had gone to the nearest house, notified the people of the deed he had committed, and given himself up to the trial justice.

There was no living eye-witness to the transaction other than the defendant himself, and consequently the defence were compelled to rely upon his testimony alone so far as the circumstances of the killing were concerned. The prisoner who is a fine looking young man, gave his testimony with perfect calmness and candor. He admitted, without hesitation, that he had killed Davis, and intended to kill him, but claimed that he had done so only after he was thoroughly satisfied that his own life was in imminent danger. The defence supported the testimony of the accused by a number of witnesses, who testified that the deceased was a man of violent passions, easily provoked to anger, and extremely dangerous when aroused. Among these, strange to say, was the widow of the deceased, who further testified that her husband had frequently threatened the life of the prisoner concerning the land in dispute between them.
